Every day you make progress. Every step may be fruitful. Yet there will stretch out before you an ever-lengthening, ever-ascending, ever-improving path. You know you will never get to the end of the journey. But this, so far from discouraging, only adds to the joy and glory of the climb.

- Sir Winston Churchill (1874 – 1965)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Through this professional development course, students have the opportunity to practice skills and apply knowledge acquired in the other “classroom” courses in this program. During this practical experience, the student spends a minimum of 50 hours on-site, observing and participating in geriatric care management. While on site, the student’s work may range from simple observation (minimum acceptable level) to active engagement (preferred level) in the following required activities:

- conducting formal and informal client and family interviews;
- performing appropriate assessments, formal and informal;
- formulating and managing care plans; and
- making needs-based, direct referrals and brokering services between clients and formal and/or informal service providers.

In addition to these required areas, students may also engage in problem-solving and advocacy for older adults and their concerns. Students may also be exposed to business or institutional aspects of geriatric care management, which are also valuable components of the experience. Throughout the course there is a strong emphasis on the development of professional communication skills, both in correspondence and report preparation. Through these ancillary undertakings, the student further develops and enhances his or her overall professional identity as a geriatric care manager.

GOALS FOR THE PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

During the practical experience, it is anticipated that the student will expand his or her professional identity as a geriatric care manager through

- Participation in major aspects of geriatric care management service delivery in an agency, facility, or business setting.
- Application of knowledge, skills, and abilities gained through GCM coursework and other related experiences.
- Development of professional networks and relationships with service providers and other vendors in the geriatric care field.
- Enhancement of professional communication skills relevant to the world of geriatric care.
• Expansion of skills in decision making, problem solving, advocacy, and case documentation.
• Engagement in business practices and/or institutional protocol, where applicable.

PRIMARY COURSE OBJECTIVES

In order to meet the goals of the Professional Development course,

A. Students will document a minimum of 50 hours at their selected site. Students typically spend more hours than this on site in order to attain the practical objectives of the course. Much of this has to do with timing and the activities available on site in any given time period.

B. While on site, students must accrue and document a minimum of 10 hours of direct client services in each of four required major activity areas:

1. Client Interviewing;
2. Client Assessment;
3. Care Plan Development, Monitoring, Evaluation, and Modification; and

A fifth, non-required area, Other Activities, is also included for recording the manifold other activities related to geriatric care management that do not fall within the defined required areas.

Please refer to the section header Definitions of Activities for task descriptions of the work expected.

Direct client services: Activities focused on specific, identifiable client(s) or families for whom these activities are undertaken. Simply visiting with clients or engaging in general business activities such as training, research, marketing, or networking are defined under the fifth area, Other Activities.

SECONDARY COURSE OBJECTIVES

In addition to meeting the above required objectives during the class, the student is expected to also

A. Evaluate the geriatric care services rendered at the site as observed during the practical experience and report observations in Journals or Summary;

B. Demonstrate professionalism in personal presentation, behavior, and oral/written communication skills.

C. Develop methods for self-assessment with the goal of capitalizing on strengths while improving skills or presentation.

TEXTBOOK

No textbook is required for this course; however it is recommended that the texts and materials from previous courses be consulted ad libitum during the semester.

PROCEDURE

A. Site Selection and Criteria. The student locates a site or sites in which to complete the required minimum 50 hours of practical experience. Consultation with instructor during site selection is recommended, when possible. Students are encouraged to represent themselves as student-volunteers to the site, and outline the basic requirements to the service (e.g., social work) where a placement is sought. Note that some sites have requirements for volunteers or students that will be outside the scope and nature of this course and program. Some sites may require a Memorandum of Understanding between UF and the site. These take some time to process. Please consult with the instructor if you encounter these issues.

1. Typical Volunteer Sites. Private geriatric care management businesses, geriatric specialty medical groups, community-based senior facilities, rehabilitation facilities, long-term or convalescent care centers, hospice organizations, and assisted living facilities. Other sites may also work if they permit the student opportunities to meet course requirements. Consult with the instructor.

2. Employment Sites. A student may use a current employment site if it will provide the required range of experiences. Please alert the instructor if this is the goal.

B. Supervision on site. The student will recruit a professional provider at the site to act as preceptor (site supervisor) during the practical experience and who will agree to evaluate the student at the end of the term, plus verify the student’s timesheet.

Students should seek to work under the supervision of a credentialed preceptor. Though a preceptor with the CGCM credential is desirable, these are not commonly found. Professionals with LCSW, CRC, RN, CMC, CCM, or CDP are usually more available. This list is not exhaustive: other credentials may also be acceptable—consult with the instructor. The rationale for this is largely for the protection of the student. Credentialing organizations hold their members to high professional standards and codes of ethics, with consequences for violation of either. Also, credentialed professionals have typically undergone supervision during their own training. They have a clearer understanding of what a practicum entails and are better acquainted with the expected skill levels of practicum students.

C. Documentation. Students will complete and submit, and ensure that their preceptor completes and submits, all documentation by the deadline dates specified in the Course Calendar. Students should review all applicable materials with the preceptor to ensure that the preceptor understands the expected scope of the experience.

D. Schedules of Completion. The student is expected to accrue and document a minimum of 50 hours of engagement in specific GCM activities while on site over the course of the semester. Most students find they accrue more than 50 hours on site. This is acceptable and often desirable.

1. For a full 15-week semester (e.g., Fall and Spring), this means spending an average range of about 3-5 hours in GCM activities at the site each week. Students may also find it beneficial to their overall experience to accrue additional hours these and other GCM activities while on site. Summer semester allows 12 weeks for completion and may require more hours per week on site.

2. Alternative rates of completion are acceptable (i.e., abbreviated time on site), but the instructor must be alerted in advance. Abbreviated plans of completion (shorter than the full semester) will require more than the range of 3-5 hours on site weekly, of course.
3. Holidays and unforeseen interruptions in business or supervision during the term may also require the student to spend more than the average expected number of hours on site each week.

4. In GCM—as in most human service fields—periods of high activity can alternate with periods of low activity. This means that while the minimum 50 hours on site may be completed in as little as two weeks’ full-time commitment, that short amount of time on site may not give the student enough opportunities to fulfill all of the time requirements in all of the activity areas.

5. Incompletes and the issues they create are to be avoided. Please contact the instructor if any delaying issues arise immediately upon your awareness of them. Students risk receiving an Unsatisfactory if the instructor is not alerted in a timely manner about problems with completion.

E. Reporting. Accurate reporting of all activities and hours accrued on site is imperative. Students are requested to keep track of their activities and hours with care, as these will be closely monitored per the requirements of this course.

1. Journals. The student will prepare and submit journals, expected weekly, following the provided format. Journal content reflects the student’s experiences on site that week. Journals are to be formulated in two sections, permitting both an objective recounting of the week’s activities and a subjective assessment of the week’s experiences. Journals will be graded on a Complete/Incomplete basis. The journal will also reflect the time spent in each of the required activities, once again listed here in brief form:
   - Face-to-face interviews with clients and/or family members;
   - Client assessment (including Caregiver assessment);
   - Care Plan development, monitoring, evaluation, and modification as needed;
   - Direct work in referral to formal and informal services and resources;
   - Other Activities (if present).

Note: The student will track time on site using both the journal entries and the timesheet. The tallies should match.

Please follow the directions on the Journal formats for construction of your journal. Understand that the need to track time and activities accurately supersedes personal preference for formatting in this course.

Important: Keep copies of everything you post. Submit by attaching documents or by cutting and pasting text, etc., into the frame.

Qualitative expectations: Journals should be thorough, complete, reflective, and submitted each week. Please note: students are required to follow HIPAA protocol for maintaining the confidentiality and integrity of Protected Health Information. Please identify clearly whom you’re discussing but use initials (e.g., LP, Mrs. M., Dr. X., etc.). Do not use numbers (client 1, client 2, etc.) to ID clients—it’s not possible to keep good track of them this way.

You may identify staff and professionals by name. Please note that the discussion forums are accessible to all members of the class, Instructional Technology personnel and UF e-learning staff. Though rare, it’s possible for any included sensitive information to be seen in the discussion forums. Use discretion.
2. Log of Hours/Timesheet.

   It’s preferred that students use the PDF template provided to track the total hours on site. This PDF conveniently tallies the hours automatically. Students submit their timesheets mid-term (unsigned) at midterm and final (signed) at the end of the term, via the Assignment feature. Print, complete, scan, and attach.

F. Participation. Students will engage with one another and the instructor as they progress through their practical experiences through

1. Weekly Journal Postings: Students share and comment on their journals posted to each week’s discussion forum; and
2. Online Meetings when arranged. Online meetings are not scheduled, but may be arranged at the discretion of the instructor or upon students’ request. Students are welcomed to initiate online conferences. All are invited to participate in all Open Conferences.

G. Preceptor Evaluation. The student will ensure that the preceptor completes and submits the evaluation form at the end of the term. Students must perform at the Satisfactory or better level (three (3) or above) on each criterion rated on the evaluation. Failure to meet this level of performance on any evaluated aspect will result in an Unsatisfactory grade for the semester. A Satisfactory grade is required to proceed with program completion. Please encourage your preceptor to submit comments on the evaluation in addition to providing their numeric rating of your performance. Your preceptor may share evaluation information with you, at his or her discretion.

H. Self-Assessment. At the end of the semester, the student will prepare a five- to seven-page Summary of Practical Experience. The Summary should be thorough, complete, reflective, and follow the format provided. Special attention will be given to the student’s clarity of expression, spelling, accurate use of terminology (medical and otherwise), and proper grammar, as these are also vital skills in presenting oneself professionally. A preferred format is provided.

EVALUATION CRITERIA

PRACTICUM EXPERIENCE - RANGE AND SCOPE OF PRACTICE

Definitions of Activities
Please use these definitions in reporting your activities in your journals.

1. Client Interviewing: Purposeful, formal or informal gathering of subjective, self-reported information from face-to-face interactions with clients and/or families in order to identify appropriate direction for assessments and to guide the development, monitoring, and evaluation of the care plan. Periodic re-interviewing of client and/or family members to determine continued fit of care plan objectives over time. Important Note: Simply visiting with the client or family, running errands, or assisting in other ways (e.g., moving furniture) falls in the Other Activities area.

Examples of Interviewing:
- Initial interviews (complimentary or billed) with prospective clients/families prior to being engaged as GCM.
- Engaging with clients/families to gather biopsychosocial/spiritual information in order to begin formulating a care plan.
- Re-visiting clients/families to review/update information or gather additional personal data.

2. Client Assessment: Observing, assisting with, or independently conducting face-to-face, formal or informal, focused assessments designed to gather objective information to inform the care management process.

Assessments may evaluate any pertinent area: psychosocial, cognitive, functional, and/or medical. Assessment activities may include (not exhaustive):

a. Formal assessments conducted using standard geriatric assessment questionnaires or other forms. Examples include the MMSE, a complete MSE, Geriatric Depression Scale (GDS), MDS assessment, MOCA, GHQ, PHQ, standardized interviews, facility-developed questionnaires, or other published instruments. Caregiver assessment that informs the care management process is included in this activity area.

b. Assessments via professional observations of behavior, interpersonal interaction, activities of daily living, and instrumental activities of daily living; PT/OT/SLP evals; nursing assessments; environmental, home, and facility assessments; safety assessments; assessment of fall risk; technology assessments. Conducted with or without the aid of checklists or assessment forms.

c. Periodic reassessment of client and family situation to evaluate care management needs and care plan objectives.

Note: Review of client files in preparation for assessment is certainly part of the assessment process, but file review does not take the place of the required direct, face-to-face, in-person assessment. Ten hours of direct, face-to-face assessment contact (observation or participation) is required for the class. Should this present an issue, please alert the instructor.

☞ Be aware that we understand Assessment can and does frequently co-occur with Client Interviewing, but note that rather than gathering subjective data, Assessment focuses on gathering specific objective data, with a comparison of the client and/or family situation to expected norms. Special attention should be paid to the individual circumstances and dynamics affecting the client and family at the time of assessment. When Assessment is done in conjunction with Interviewing, the student is encouraged to use professional judgment in reporting which is occurring and for how long in any single session with the client/family.

Care Plan Development, Monitoring, Evaluation, and Modification: Observing, assisting in, or independently engaging in Care Plan activities, to include (not exhaustive)

a. Development: Developing the client’s Care Plan based upon information gathered through subjective reports (interviewing) and objective evaluation (assessment) of the client, the family, available resources, and supports. Establishing Care Management goals and objectives; service providers, and services as needed. Identifying roles and responsibilities to be assigned to participants in the care plan. Developing a timeline for delivery of products or services.

b. Monitoring: Continually or periodically reviewing care plan goals and objectives to make sure that goals and objectives are being met and needs are being addressed appropriately. Sitting in with clients during appointments (but not waiting in waiting rooms) can be included here, as can staffing client cases in meetings with preceptor and/or care management teams. Facility Care Plan meetings are also considered monitoring.

c. Evaluation: Continually or periodically comparing care plan goals and objectives to actual outcomes or performance to determine appropriate fit with current or changing needs.

d. Modification: Using current information gained through monitoring and evaluating the care plan to make needed adjustments in care planning goals, objectives, timelines, and roles/responsibilities as appropriate, as client needs change over time.

3. Referral to Formal and Informal Services: Observing, assisting in, or independently providing individualized and direct referral to formal and informal service and resources, matching available resources to a specific client’s needs. Activities may include: using assessment information to identify formal and informal supports for suitability in meeting client needs. Using problem-solving skills and client advocacy measures to make telephone calls or in-person community contacts on behalf of a client or family; and/or negotiating services on behalf of the client. Using databases to link client and/or family members to appropriate vendors, providers, organizations, or private sources of assistance, including any funding sources.

   Note: General activities related to (a) promotion and marketing, networking, or presentations to promote your site’s services, or (b) your own research into potential service providers are in the Other Activities category and are not considered direct client work; these are not countable toward this activity area.

Other Activities: No minimum time requirement in this general activity category. Engagement in activities ancillary to or supportive of Geriatric Care Management, which may include (not exhaustive):

Problem-solving: Accurately identifying problem or issue to be addressed and applying appropriate problem-solving strategies; assessing process and procedure; fine-tuning strategies to achieve acceptable outcome; evaluating outcome.

Advocacy: Advocating for services, policy, and/or opportunities that may benefit individual clients or the larger population of older adults.
Business aspects: Participating in orientation and/or training; reviewing business procedures used at the site (e.g., forms, notes, technology, software); attending staff meetings; attending or presenting trainings; participating in networking opportunities or marketing activities.

Institutional protocol: Participating in orientation and trainings; reviewing procedures (forms, notes, technology, documentation training); staffings, and related.

Supervision/Consultation: engaging in supervision, consultation, or discussion with preceptor or colleagues.

Research: Reviewing client records for reasons other than individual assessment; researching information to enhance one’s own knowledge base (database) of available services, providers, vendors, organizations, programs, or referral targets; research to enhance one’s GCM toolkit.

Other tasks and activities: This area can include other activities that a GCM may do on site, including filing, answering telephones, responding to inquiries; providing information and referral—to non-clients, or pre-clients, only. Contact with established clients may be documented under the appropriate required activity area whenever possible.

Client-related tasks included under Other Activities (not exhaustive):

- Traveling to client’s location
- Traveling with preceptor to client’s location, unless conducting a countable activity during that time (i.e., discussing evaluation or modification of a care plan).
- Simple visiting with clients at home or in care facilities (vs. GCM care monitoring or plan evaluation or gathering data to inform referrals)
- Simple visiting with family members (vs. GCM care monitoring or plan evaluation or gathering data to inform referrals)
- Running errands or doing shopping
- Supervising medication organization
- Assisting the client or family in setting up equipment or furniture in the client’s home
- Transporting clients to appointments
- Waiting in waiting rooms

These scope of practice definitions of required and optional activities are provided for consistency in documentation. Please ensure that your journals clearly reflect these definitions as you describe your on site activities.
EXPECTATIONS FOR STUDENTS

- Communication. An experiential course requires regular communication with your instructor (via journal discussions, email, and online meetings, if scheduled) and with your colleagues in the class, if present. Students are expected to participate actively in discussions and are invited to attend online meetings if and when scheduled.

- Ethics. Ethical conduct is required at all times, on site and in the completion of the requirements of this course. Reports of any inappropriate behavior on site or violations of ethical conduct will result in a grade of Unsatisfactory for the course.

- Deadlines. Submit Journals, assignments, and documentation on or before deadline dates. Any exceptions or delays must be cleared by the instructor.

- Delays. The student must contact the instructor by email immediately should any interruptions or delays occur during the course. Timeliness is important and delays in completion of any journals, assignments, or documentation may impact the grade and must be discussed with the instructor, with contact initiated by the student.

- Make-up Work. This is a student-directed experience, and as such the student is responsible for submitting materials regularly. Should the student encounter difficulty completing some aspect of the course, the instructor should be alerted immediately to make suitable arrangements for meeting the requirements.

- Completion. Cessation of participation in the course, particularly without prior consultation with the instructor, will result in a grade of Unsatisfactory for the course. If it becomes necessary to withdraw from this course after the drop-add period, students must initiate the process with the Registrar and follow University procedures to complete formal withdrawal. Refunds are not guaranteed. Program admins and faculty cannot help with withdrawals.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY AND STUDENT CONDUCT

Students are expected to act in accordance with the University of Florida policy on academic integrity and conduct. Please review the Student Conduct Code, the Graduate Student Handbook or this web site for more details: https://sccr.dso.ufl.edu/policies/student-honor-code-student-conduct-code/
